

Blair Hussey was born and raised in Nova Scotia, Canada. He has extensive governmental and private sector investigative, analytical and major case experience in Africa, Europe, Asia, the Caribbean, United Kingdom and North America. He started his career in policing that had spanned over 17 years being the lead investigator for serious and sensitive criminal cases including but not limited to homicide, robbery, extortion, undercover and surveillance operations, drug trafficking and financial crimes.

Blair later held the position of a War Crimes Investigator, with the Special Court for Sierra Leone, during the prosecution of Charles Taylor and also held advisory and investigative positions with the International Organization of Migration in Geneva, Switzerland, the Office of Audit and Investigations, United Nations Development Programme in New York, United Nations Office of Internal Oversight in the Democratic Republic of Congo and the Royal Cayman Islands Police Anti-Corruption Unit.

Blair is nationally and internationally recognized as an expert in the areas of narcotic trafficking, financial and transnational criminal investigations and laundering the proceeds of crime.

Blair is completing a Masters of Arts in Anti-Money Laundering and Counter Terrorism Financing and holds a Bachelor of Arts in Community Studies, a Post Graduate Certificate in Business Administration, and is a graduate of the Atlantic Canadian Police Academy and the Canadian National Police College.

He is currently employed as the Chief Investigation Officer, Integrity and Anti-Corruption Department, for the African Development Bank, Cote d'Ivoire.